

Citizens Climate Lobby seeks bipartisan support

3 p.m. CDT August 3, 2014

Thank you for Leo Costello's coverage (July 27) about Citizen's Climate Lobby opening a chapter in Oshkosh. He accurately emphasized that CCL's sole focus is to help Congress enact bipartisan legislation to slow climate change. Sound impossible to get bipartisan support for a carbon tax to be paid by fossil fuel producers and rebated to the public?

A lead editor for the Wall Street Journal, Holman Jenkins, Jr. wrote on July 1, 2014: "A straight-up, revenue-neutral carbon tax clearly is our first-best policy, rewarding an infinite and unpredictable variety of innovations by which humans would satisfy their energy needs while releasing less carbon into the atmosphere."

I urge readers left, right and center to check out CCL.

Judy Weiss, Volunteer member of Citizens' Climate Lobby

Brookline, Mass.

<http://www.thenorthwestern.com/story/opinion/readers/2014/08/03/climate-warming-environment-lobby/13504909/>